

Investigators

We are finding out about the world around us through investigation

How I learn

I am learning to investigate the world around me more widely through a topic based approach. I have lots of opportunities to learn through hands on experience, experimentation and play. I am learning all the time and my adults plan independent learning provision as well as topic specific learning that supports skill development. Through my independent learning and play I am able to show what I have learnt.

How adults support my learning

My adults understand what motivates me and use these interests to engage me with learning a broad range of skills. I have the opportunities to revisit key learning often across the years to ensure that this is consolidated and built upon as I play, explore, investigate and learn.
